Jesus' concern for others - this is what we should imitate

One reason we have four gospels and not just one revolves around the early Christian conviction that there's more than one way to experience the risen Jesus in our lives. This is especially true when it comes to the Passion Narratives in the gospels. Each narrative provides us with a different dimension of Jesus' dying and rising; a different way for each of us to let the suffering, dying and risen Jesus enter our lives.

The evangelists didn't think the way we do. We basically analyze when we think, tearing the object of our thought apart, imitating the classic Greek philosophers whose goal was always to come up with an either/or answer for any problem. Our biblical writers, on the other hand, think semiotically, not Greek. Hebrews and Arabs and other peoples belong to the Semitic culture. Instead of analyzing they synthesize, instead of eventually reaching an either/or conclusion, their thought process always finishes with a both/and pronouncement, constantly providing at least several ways of looking at the same person or situation. Since Semites, not Greeks, wrote and passed on our gospels, we have four of them, not one.

For instance, this year we just heard Luke's unique take on the suffering Jesus. Unlike the other three evangelists, Luke constantly concentrates on Jesus' concern for others, Luke gives us several passages we don't find in Mark, Matthew and John. Luke is not content just to show the impact of the suffering and death of Jesus on himself, but he also stresses the concern Jesus has for how his pain affects others.

Only Luke's Jesus heals the ear of the high priest's arresting servant, makes eye contact with Peter after his denial, comforts the women mourning his impending crucifixion along the road to Golgotha, and assures the "good" thief, "Today you will be with me in paradise." Acquiring the unique mentality of Jesus is the goal of all his followers, Luke constantly concentrates on Jesus' concern for others.

This is what we should imitate if we want to be friends of Jesus.

The message of The Divine Mercy is simple: It is that God loves us – all of us.

And, God wants us to recognize that His mercy is greater than our sins, so that we will call upon Him with trust, receive His mercy, and let it flow through us to others. Thus, all will come to share His joy. The Divine Mercy message is one we can call to mind simply by remembering ABC:

A - Ask for God's Mercy.

God wants us to approach Him in prayer constantly, repenting of our sins and asking Him to pour His mercy out upon us and upon the whole world.

B - Be merciful.

God wants us to receive His mercy and let it flow through us to others. God wants us to extend love and forgiveness to others just as He does to us.

C - Completely trust in Jesus.

God wants us to know that the graces of His mercy are dependent upon our trust. The more we trust in Jesus, the more we will receive.
